

Experiences, knowledges, skills and attitudes useful in CG

Examples of experiences, knowledges, skills and attitudes that are useful to have in a community garden among its members if we want to mitigate the impacts of climate change.

Experiences and knowledges What do I know?	Skills (soft and hard) What am I capable of?	Attitudes What do I want?
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> → growing vegetables → fruit growing → growing herbs → knowledge of edible weeds → pre-growing of seedlings → the basics of permaculture → suitable crop combinations → dry-loving and water-loving plants → principles of organic cultivation → Highly productive cultivation on a small plot → working with soil → working with diseases and pests → working with organic 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> → critical thinking → self-reflection → solving the problem → assertive behaviour, → creativity → openness to the new → strategic thinking → organisational skills → Self-management → people management → cooperation with others → emotional intelligence → judgement and decision-making → focus on impact → to pass on the enthusiasm → flexibility → delegation → creating long-term relationships → active listening 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> → takes an active interest in their surroundings and neighbours → respects nature → respects other people → prefers organic cultivation → applies the principle of non-violent communication → is interested in climate change → feel a personal responsibility to mitigate the impacts of climate change → is interested in the impact of its activities → wants to save water → passes on actively acquired knowledge and skills

fertilisers
Experience and knowledge What do I know?	Skills (soft and hard) What am I capable of?	Attitudes What do I want?
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> → principles of composting → mulching methods → rainwater catchment methods → growing without water → cooking basics → harvesting → basics of seed production → operation of the composting toilet → community garden design → the basics of climate change and how to mitigate it → budgets and financing of CG operations → writing texts → grant writing → I know the garden rules and regulations 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> → respectful and non-violent communication → constructive criticality and the ability to accept criticism (give and receive feedback) → willingness to learn new things → active approach → Independence → precision → meeting facilitation → conscious work with strengths → results orientation → volunteer management → lecturing → conducting activities for children → preparation of teaching materials → grow vegetables, fruit and herbs → craftsmanship → cook a meal with ingredients from the garden → care of fruit trees → water conservation → recovery and composting of organic material from the 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> → cooperates with other community gardens, institutions, municipalities and experts → has a need to develop in sustainable topics → volunteers time, personal knowledge and skills to develop a community garden → I observe nature and my surroundings and notice changes → I respect the rules and regulations of the garden → I respect the agreed decisions of the coordination team → seeks solutions to current challenges → preserves the soil for further cultivation

	garden and household
--	----------------------	--